NEVADA CITY HI WILL TRY AGAIN TO WIN FROM G. V

Old Rivals Will Clash Again at Grass Valley High School Grounds

GOOD GAME IS EXPECTED

Locals Will Make Every Effort to Reverse Decision in Today's Game

Nevada City high school gets her chance to wipe out a 6 to 0 defeat today. Two weeks ago the Grass Valley high school football team came up here and gave the local high school eleven a neat one touchdown pasteing. True, the margin of victory was very small, the lone touchdown being made but five seconds before the end of the first half. It was just barely made too. The fact remains that Grass Valley won the game and that fact has been sticking in the local school's craw for the past fortnight.

This afternoon at 2:30 in Grass Valley a return game will be played. It will be held at the high school grounds. Admission price is four bits and five times your money's worth is guaranteed.

Many local supporters have noticed that in contrast to their opponents light and colored jerseys, the local team has worn the heavy white sweat shirts usually used only for warming up. This condition is being remedied and for today's game the local boys will be wearing the light regulation football jerseys. These jerseys were procured thru local subscription. A Nevada City business man, seeing the need for jerseys, made a canvass of the business section and obtained the necessary amount from spirited local supporters. Not only will these jerseys look nice, but more important, they will be much easier on the players and will give them a freedom of play that they have not known heretofor.

Coach Bev Barron, has been working his charges hard all this week in prepartion for this big game. Workouts have been very promising in results obtained. The boys are showing a lot of zest and zip and their spirit has been very good. A large part of the practice has been devoted to defensive work. Having played Grass Valley once already, the local team knows about what it can expect from their offensive drive. The ends have been getting down fast on kick all week.

Continued stress on Blocking, tackling and clipping has been given by Barron this week. He is making sure that the boys will know how to do a job when the time comes. They have been responding well to the teachings and some of the shoestring tackles are refreshing to behold. Barron is well pleased with the results along that line.

Several new plays have been developed for the special benefit of the Grass Valley team. With those added to their already fair sized bag of tricks, the local boys have a dazzeling selection of performaces to display. Their coach has told them to "Shoot the Works" and the results of the game rests in their hands.

On defence, Barron is well satisfied that his team is strong enough to stand off the most determined Grass Valley attack. But on offence he is not so sure. Whether the line opens up holes large enough for substantial yardage gains remains to be seen.

Last week the Grass Valley team lost a 19 to 0 decision to Auburn. The Nevada City team won a surprising victory over the highly touted San Juan Union high school team from Fair Oaks last Friday, by the tune of 13 to 6. The six points that San Juan totaled was the direct result of a blocked kick. The ball bounded over the Nevada City goal line and a San Juan player fell on it for the first touchdown of the game. The fact that Grass Valley lost the last game and Nevada City won the last game may have some moral effect on the teams play today. It is easier to continue winning them than break a losing streak to win. Nevada City has the advantage there. That advantage is neutralized by the fact that Grass Valley holds the decision over Nevada City in the other game played by the two teams.

The tenative Nevada City line-up as announced by Coach Barron this morning is as follows. Last minute changes may be made:

Right End	Tamblyn
Right Tackle	Casci
Right Guard	Clark
Center	Tucker
Left Guard	Barry
Quarterback	Hoffman
Right Halfback	Chapman
Fullback	Oates

GEORGE LEGG'S BARN BURNS YESTERDAY

An old house in the rear of the George A. Legg home on Nevada street, was destroyed by fire of unknown origin shortly after two o'clock yesterday afternoon. The house was used as a garage and storage barn by Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Farmer, who have rented an apartment in the Legg home.

The fire started at about two o'clock sharp and by 2:15 it was well under the control of the Nevada City Fire Department. The boys are very efficient and once they start on a job it does not take them long to subdue the flames.

There was no wind blowing yesterday at the time of the fire, fortunately. The two closest homes, the Legg home and the James Foley home were unharmed, although for a short time it looked bad for both of them.

Sparks from the fire set a patch of grass ablaze just below the C. A. Bennett backyard 125 feet away. The Bennett home is just below the Legg home.

One of the first persons on the job was Happy Charlie the Chinaman. Charlie was raking up the leaves in the rear of the Bennet home. The pile of leaves was near an outdoor incinerator but a few feet below the burned building. First arrivals declare that the leaves were not burning until after the barn was ablaze. It was at first thought that Charlie had set the leaves on fire and that the flames spread to the barn.

Nothing of any great value was destroyed. Some old lumber and odds and ends were the only things destroyed in the barn. The barn itself is a total wreck with just a skeleton of charcoal remaining upright.

OIL STATION CHANGES HANDS IN THIS CITY

Last Saturday Max Weiss retired from acitve duty at the Sandard Oil service station on upper Broad st. G. H. Cleland of Oakland has taken it over and is now continuing to operate it just as it was operated under the Weiss regime. The same line of Standard Oil products will be sold and Cleland promises to give the best of service.

Cleland has come here with his wife and small child. They are makking their home in Nevada City permanently.

Mrs. Cleland is the grand daughter of Ezra Meker the famous author and western pioneer. Meker was one of the first pioners of the state of Washington. It was he who first blazed the well known Oregon trail. He started that work in 1852 and continued it practically all of his life up until the time of his death in December, 1928.

Meeker's name was made through his writings. His works are referred to by historians as being authentic. His books are used in the public schools.

Nevada City is glad to welcome permanent home-seekers such as the Cleland family.

Frank Thurston Of Olympia Park Is Ill

The general epidemic of "flue" which has been showing up here and there, struck Mr. Frank Thurston last Sunday and he was obliged to be on the sick list for awhile. His temperature took an upward turn and he suffered severe abdominal pain. Doctor Jones is taking care of the case and at the present writing has the malady under control and the patient is resting easy and no doubt will be up in a few days.

AUTOMOBILE DRIVER MAKES DEAD CENTER ON TELEPHONE POLE

Residents of East Broad Street were aroused from their reveries Sunday afternoon by a loud crash and the clatter of broken glass. Telephone wires were swaying merrily from the impact of a coupe of popular make which had been driven head on into a large pole in front of Ed Uren's fence.

The driver, who was overflowing from the effects of the cup that cheers, had caromed off a smaller pole further down the street taking only a handful of slivers along with the top of his machine, but he made a dead center hit on the larger pole, with disastrous results. When he was extricated he had been driven half way through the broken windshield by the impact. but escaped with but minor cuts on the arms.

The machine had wrapped itself snugly about the pole; the radiator hung suspended by the top tie rod and the headlights were looking every way but the way they should look.

The owner, now considerably sobered by his experience, ruefully examined his mangled car. He undertook to close one of the doors, only to have it drop off, and when traffic officer Blake arrived on the scene he had just finished sweeping the broken glass off the pavement and told the official that a "flat" had caused the car to become unmanageable. Officer Blake however, failed to find the "flat" and, pending further citation the driver was allowed to proceed homeward on foot.

It is a misdemeanor to drive a car while intoxicated. The lives of innocent people are endangered and the penalties should be so severe as to put a stop to this class of offenders.

Man Gets Badly Cut Hand Cutting Wood

Max Weiss, local war veteran, was cutting wood the other day. Holding the wood in one hand and cutting with the other, the axe slipped and severed several tendons in his hand. It was a bad cut and will lay Weiss up for quite a few weeks.

Weiss is a retired master sergeant of the United States army. That position is the highest rank than an enlisted man can attain.

Now Weiss is a member of the Banner Mountain post No. 2655, Veterans of Foreign Wars. He holds the rank of Quartermaster in the local post.

N. SAN JUAN MAN LOSES LIFE LONG KEEPSAKE

Sixty three years ago, in Switzerland, John Schnellman was playing with some explosive powder that he had found somewhere. John was then a small boy of eleven years. Something went wrong and the powder exploded. John's hands and face were badly burned and some flying glass cut him in several places on the face.

Time healed the wounds and when young Mr. Schenellman was older he left his native land. For years he traveled all over the world and finally he settled down in North San Juan, Nevada County.

The other day a pain came to Mr. Schnellman's left check just below the check bone. It pained him for several days and he finally asked a miner friend, working near San Juan to take a look at the cheek. Upon inspection, his friend found the jagged point of a piece of glass sticking out from the cheek. Taking a firm hold on the point, the friend gave a yank—and zip came a piece of glass fully three quarters of an inch long from the cheek.

For sixty-three years that piece of glass had been imbedded in Mr. Schnellman's face. Since the wounds from the explosion had healed up, he had felt no pain in his cheek, until about a week ago. When the glass was taken out it did not hurt and since then it has caused no trouble.

So the glass that Mr. Schnellman has carried around with him for nearly all of his life and carried many thousands of miles from one side of the earth to the other is now gone.

N. D. G. W HONOR PIONEERS WITH BRONZE TABLET

Impressive Ceremonies Are Attended by Large Crowd Wednesday Morning

Members of Laurel Parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West, of this city felt a thrill of civic pride when they assembled with a large number of their fellow citizens last Wednesday morning in front of the court house to dedicate to the memory of the pioneers of this community an artistic bronze tablet which had been placed upon the oldest brick structure in Nevada City just a few days previous to the ceremony.

Opening the program came the inspiring music of the Nevada City high school band.

While the band played the Star Spangled Banner the North wind carried in unison, it would seem, the folds of the American flag which was displayed on the lawn of the court house rendering a harmony to the patriotic strains of the band.

The donor of the placque, Mrs. Brainard of Sacramento, is a niece of Dr. Jamieson who practiced medicine in Grass Valley several years ago. In a speech which was full of deep sentiment for the honor of contributing to this city a fitting marker to designate the early building, the only building which survived the disasterous fires which swept the city in the early "fifties". Mrs. Brainard paid lofty tribute to the brave pioneer band that trecked these hills and valleys and builded the foundation of our own present progressive city in the high Sierras.

In a graceful speech Mrs. Neva Pianezzo accepted the placque on behalf of the citizens of Nevada City and in memory of their pioneer forefathers.

Judge Jones introduced Mrs. Anna Mixon Armstrong, of Woodland, then formally dedicated the placque and in her official capacity of Grand President of the Native Daughters. She followed with the explanation that the covered wagon which is in raised outline on the marker is a symbol of the tradition of the perilous days of the emigrant coming west to later found our Empire.

Judge Jones made the principal speech of the day, dwelling upon the faith of the builders of the brick building, faith that the future of these was not ephemeral but would endure for generations yet unborn.

The band then played America, the assembled citizens joining in community singing in happy conclusion of ceremonial truly edifying and bearing out the reverence for the pioneers which is the cardinal principal of the Native Daughters of California.

GOLD STANDARD MINE YIELDS GOLD NUGGETS

L. C. Brayton of the Gold Standard Mining Company. came in from his property in the Steep Hollow district, which is east of Nevada City about twelve miles.

Mr. Brayton has owned a considerable acreage for several years and in his latest discoveries found the channel extended into the Marty property and has leased a part of that property.

The old tunnel had caved in several places and it was decided to drive another one.

At this time the tunnel is in 1,000 feet. He has taken out about $50 a day when working, but it has been his intention to drive ahead and strike the main channel.

EDITOR BUILDING PAPER VISITS NEVADA CITY

C. D. LeMaster ,editor of the Western Building Review, published at Sacramento ,was a visitor in Nevada City this week, the guest of Fred E. Conner, manager of the Nevada County Lumber Company.

Mr. LeMaster ,in commenting on business conditions, was not overly optimistic about the immediate future and, in his opinion, it will take some time to bring about any great improvement in conditions throughout the United States. However, Mr. LeMaster believes that Franklin D. Roosevelt will do everything in his power to initiate fundamental changes for bettering economic conditions.

PIONEER OF NEVADA CITY IS CALLED BY DEATH

It is with deep regret that the many friends of Mrs. W. H. Martin. learned of her passing on Tuesday of this week after an illness of several weeks duration. In fact Mrs. Martin had failed noticeably since the death of her husband in 1927.

Mrs. Martin was a native of England, born there in 1849, and coming to California, was married to W. H. Martin, June 24, 1874. The whole of their married life was spent in Nevada City, where Mr. Martin was engaged in mining, owning a mine at one time near Sierra City. He was also interested in what is known as the Mayflower mine now owned by M. Ivan Dow. Later on Mr. Martin ran what is known now as the Miner's Foundry, which is still conducted by the family.

Mrs. Martin had lived to a ripe old age, having celebrated the golden anniversary of her wedding here in 1924. She was known and loved by all of the older residents having payed a part in the community affairs for many years.

She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Richard R. Goyne and Mrs. Betty Martin West, a sister, Mrs. A. Mills of San Francisco and a son W. R. Martin, and several nieces and nephews in England.

The funeral was held here Thursday morning from the Holmes Funeral home and in accordance with Mrs. Martin's wish, was private. The Nugget joins with host of friends and neighbors in extending sympathy to the breaved family

FRANK ROWE WINS CLOSE FIGHT IN SECOND DISTRICT

It took a count of the absent voters ballots to decide the supervisorial right in the second district which embraces Grass Valley. There were 83 absentee ballots to be counted and this work was completed Wednesday of this week.

The final result gave Frank Rowe a total of 1,351, while Harry Goudge totaled 1,345, giving Rowe a majority of 6 votes.

It must be very hard on the office seeker these days who is running a close race as he is liable to have his props knocked out from under him just when all looks like smooth sailing.

In the final count before the absent ballots were counted it looked good for Goudge that is he had a lead of 12 votes over his opponent and then along comes this absent vote count and "Whooey" the result looks altogether different.

The final count in the First District gave Carey S. Arbogast 924 votes and R. A. Eddy 609.

SKI CLUB CARD PARTY WAS HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL

Last Tuesday evening, the benefit card party put on in the Elks Hall by the Nevada City-Grass Valley Ski Club, was very successful from both a social and a financial standpoint.

Miss Bernice Clemo and Mrs. Lola Worth were largely responsible for the good work. They did most of the actual work and deserve a lot of credit for the able manner in which they staged the party. The Ski Club should be very grateful for the effort expended in their behalf.

MAGAZINE STORY BRINGS MAN HERE FROM NEW YORK

Story in Collier's Magazine Brings Young Man to Nevada County

THINKS GOLD PLENTIFUL

Quits Job in New York to Make Easy Money in California

Last Wednesday a big strapping young fellow, apparently in his early thirties, stopped in at the Nevada City Chamber of Commerce, and asked Mr. O. W. Woodman where he could go to work and pan some gold out of the rivers. After telling the stranger that if he knew where he could get gold such as the man was looking for, he would be there digging for gold himself. Woodman asked where the idea came from about easy gold.

The following story was told to Woodman. This young man, of Italian parentage, had a good job in New York state at fifty dollars a month. About two months ago he read an article about the easy gold to be found along any river or in any of the hills of California. The article had appeared in the Collier's magazine ,a publication of nation-wide circulation. The article, which was gross exageration, told in detail about how easy it was to pan gold from the California streams. It said words to the effect that all of the miners and snipers working the rivers were making between three and seven dollars a day on an average. It gave the impression that the work was easy and the returns plentiful. To inexperienced people, the article made California look very rosy, especially in this so-called depression period, when so many men are out of work.

In protest against the exageration of the story, the local Chamber of Commerce sent a letter to the Collier's magazine people asking them to correct the false impression given out by the article. As yet no answer has been sent and Collier's have failed to make a corretcion in their publication. They perhaps are interested in sending the unemployed people of the east to California this winter so that they will be a burden on us and not on eastern people.

After reading Collier's exagerated story, the young New Yorker decided to quit his job and go to sunny California. He had an automobile and cashing in all his assets could count $250.00 in cash. With that he started westward. A couple of weeks later he landed in the lower mother lode district. From there he has traveled up to this city and here he wanted to know from Woodman where he could go and pan gold. Woodman told him the true conditions here, that even an experienced man averages not more than 50 cents a day working the rivers.

The young fellow had absolutely no knowledge of mining. He even asked what was meant by "mucking." He still had fifty dollars left and his automobile. Woodman told him that the best move he could make would be to hot-foot it right back to New York and get his old job back again if possible. If he couldn't get his job, at least he would be where he has some friends this winter.

NIMROD STREET BRIDGE READY FOR USE TODAY

Nevada City has just put in a new concrete bridge on Nimrod street over Little Deer Creek. The concrete has dried sufficiently to permit travel and today for the first time automobiles will be permitted to drive over the bridge.

The city asked for bids on the construction work. The firm Kelliher and Figurski of this city with offices at 305 Broad street under bid all other bidders by at least $503.00 Their bid was also $543.00 lower. than the estimate of the city's engineer and represented a substancial saving to the city.

ADVERTISING AND BUSINESS

There was a time when advertising in a weekly newspaper was regarded as a sort of donation to the proprietor. The local paper was regarded as a civic institution that had to be supported, the same as the local brass band, the church and the chamber of commerce. And most of the advertisers advertised because "they wanted to help the paper."

Those reasons still hold good. A newspaper is a civic institution, and a mighty important one. The town without a newspaper is a good town to stay away from. The local newspaper fights the battles of the community—it is the voice of the community.

But aside from the civic aspect of supporting a newspaper, there has developed, in recent years, the realization that advertising actually pays—that it is essential in building up a business and selling merchandise. The development of chain stores and other big selling organizations has done a great deal to teach the small town merchant the value of advertising. Montgomery Ward & Company is probably the biggest advertiser in the United States. It is safe to say that advertising has been the vital factor in the expansion of Montgomery Ward & Company.

The small town merchant has learned that, if he is to survive, he must advertise. The object of adverising is to create, in the mind of the reader, the desire to buy. And successful advertising does just that. The buyer is looking for bargains, values, and when he reads of something that he needs—or wants—offered at a price that he can afford to pay, you have the first step in a sale.

That is the function of advertising—to bring together the buyer and the seller. The seller must offer good merchandise at a competitive price or he cannot expect to sell. He may have good merchandise and his process may be right and still he may not sell his goods—because he does not advertise. These are the three things that make sales—good merchandise, fair prices and advertising.

The selection of an advertising medium is, of course, important. Money can be wasted in advertising and not bring any results. Advertising must reach the people to whom the goods are to be sold. The newspaper is the best means of doing this. The value of newspaper advertising is dependent on the circulation. The advertising rate of the Nevada City Nugget is very low in relation to circulation—in fact the lowest of any newspaper we know of.

A newspaper can only grow in size and in news content in proportion to the growth of advertising. There are people who fail to realize this. The advertising revenue is the factor that determines the size and the frequency of publication. Any business man can see that. It takes revenue to buy paper, pay labor and overhead. And the newspaper publisher that does not keep his expense in the proper relation to his income is headed for failure. As stated in previous issues the Nugget will be improved and enlarged just as fast as business will permit.

Motorlogue to Downieville

Now that the politics are settled for four years there is a dearth of subjects to write about, so let's all take a trip to Downieville. Seeing that the sun is shining, and the air brisk, it promises to be an interesting ride. God has endowed California with the beautiful Toyon shrub, which right now is in full berry and most carefully arranged along our road to work. Our ride even were worth while because of their beauty. Squirrels and ground squirrels with tails high in air, scurry hither and yon just missing instant death under our wheels.

Within 40 minutes we round a sharp corner and the village of San Juan pops into view and directly we are at Henry Huckin's, where Henry himself dispenses groceries, pleasant smiles, advice to drivers and buys gold just like in 49

A whisper farther on our course to the Fairway Market, a new enterprise for San Juan, which is rapidly coming into favor with the eating public.

Then just for ducks let us go in and say hello to Kern Fogarty, who runs the Moulton store and where Buck Saw serves the population with the letters which bring money from home.

Kern tells us there is some building activity in San Juan and business good. Then five miles round many many corners and curves we come to Wilsons Log Cabin general store. Here we meet Joe Toly, who willingly answers questions about all the antiquated guns and antiques which forstoon the place. The stock of goods carried indicate that trade must be fairly brisk.

A little farther on we arrive at Camptonville, a truly western mountain village, perched on a hill and lying largely in the sunshine. Marks store is a large beautifully decorated place, well stocked and well kept but we must go on as time slips away and two miles farther we come to Langley's Park, with beautiful cabins and tiffany set in the hills and the mountains where weary travelers or anyone in fact can find a house and visit for a mighty small sum per month. As we settle down into the cushions for the longer more rugged yet beautiful ride to Lusk Camp within four miles of Downieville, where Sam Lusk caters to the miners, tourists, highway workers, and all. Sam can still cut some fancy capers on skies of which he has some gorgeous specimens.

But let's get on to our destination and here we are, at Cannon point looking down on the white houses of the city of Downieville, founded by another Anderson but named after Downie both old timers and for aught I know empire builders in a small way.

Lunch time brings us to Lloyds restaurant, a place which would credit a larger town, and across the street Casta's Red and White store, with a general line of good things to eat—at "down below" prices.

Lest we forget, that huge gold scales in the corner in the glass case actually gives one the creeps with its accuracey yes! So accurate that a pencil mark on a piece of paper will move the beau off center, this scale is credited with having been in this location for 80 years and with having weighed in excess of 40 millions in gold. Mr. Costa has been offered a high price well over $1,000 for the scale, but steadfastly refuses to let this wonderful instrument leave his possession. Sometime go in and see it yourself for we must go back to Nevada City for dinner and later on we will go again into this interesting section of beautiful California.

About the year 1918 I wrote an article for a magazine and as I read it now it still sounds good and if you will bear with me here it is.

The Empire Mines

"In the making of the history of Gold Mining in California, the Empire mine stands pre-eminent, not alone for its wealth, but for what that mine, above all others, has given in the way of example and earnest, well-applied endeavor—the pioneer in deep mining, and the first to regard Grass Valley mining a legitimate business, controlled by the same laws and conditions as should govern a well managed manufacturing establishment." So wrote Mr. George W. Starr for the Mining and Scientific Press in an article that was reprinted in the First Annual Report of the Empire Mines and Investment Company for the year ending December 31, 1900. And Grass Valley, then, as it is now, was famous in every mining camp the world over. From 1893 to 1898, Mr. Starr had been consulting engineer for Barnato Brothers in South Africa. During that period many men came to him for mining positions—most of whom had to be refused because there was no opening. Of these, one Englishman remarked as he turned away, "No, of course, I cannot get a position, but I will get one yet, for I am going to America to sleep one night in Grass Valley, that I may be a practical mining engineer!" Among the many formerly connected with the Empire Mines who later became famed throughout the mining world can be mentioned, in addition to Mr. Starr, George D. Roberts (one of the original locators of the Ophir Hill ledges that became the Empire Mines), J. W. Gashwiler, William Clift (whose son owns the Clift Hotel in San Francisco), Thomas Mein, David Watt, David McKay, John Hays Hammond, Richard Angove, H. A. Tilghman, Coppes Thurston, V. M. Clement, and James D. Hague.

Mr. Starr then continues: "What now (1900) constitutes the Empire Mine is a consolidation into one ownership and management of what was formerly hundreds of claims. The nucleus of this amalgamation was the original Empire Mine on Ophir Hill, discovered in October, 1850, by George D. Roberts, and sold with adjoining claims in 1851 to Woodbury, Park and others, who owned a quartz mill in Boston Ravine, known as the Empire mill. In the spring of 1854 the Empire Mining company was incorporated, additional territory purchased, and operations commenced on a more systematic basis. In 1865-66 new works were erected at an outlay of nearly $200,000, including a thirty-stamp mill, then one of the finest in the state. The principal owner and manager at this time was Captain S. W. Lee, who clung to many of his marine ideas. The interior of the new mill was ceiled and painted and the superstructure so designed that it was always known as "The Steamboat Mill."

But 15 years before two Germans had built the first stamp mill—a crude affair in which the stamps were tree trunks shod with a piece of iron! From this rough experimental start in Boston Ravine, now a part of Grass Valley, the system of crushing gold ore with stamps weighing from a quarter of a ton up grew until by 1867 Grass Valley had 30 mills with a total of 284 stamps dropping. Then as now, the individual thump of a dropping stamp blended with the thumping of its neighbors until only a steady roar was heard from one end of Grass Valley to the other. And nothing better expresses the thought of a mine in operation nor gives more vivid picture of the volume being run than the accepted phrase "She's dropping 10 stamps" or "2 stamps" or "80 stamps."

By 1900 the Empire Mines had obtained the claims and ledges that were formerly operated as the Ophir Hill, Rush & Laton, Keefe and Judd, Rich Hill, Magenta, Osborne Hill, Empire, and Danahue mines. The original quartz mining claims acquired or "pegged out" by the individual miners were 30 to 40 feet. Two or more of these individuals would go together and form a "company," working their joint claims together and buying adjoining claims. And so the gold mining ventures grew apace. But from 1867 to 1879 the Grass Valley mines were supposed to be "petering out" and, quoting from Mr. Starr, "Grass Valley was known as a worked out, dying camp, with but three mines in active operation: The Idaho, New York Hill, and Empire—the first in 'bonanza,' the other two in 'borasco.'

May, 1880, the New York Hill closed down (later reopened as part of the North Star mine) leaving the fate of the camp with the then great Idaho and the struggling old Empire. To the Empire Mine Grass Valley owes a debt of lasting gratitude, for in the history of the mine, more than to all other circumstances combined, is due Grass Valley's growth from a temporary mining camp to an attractive city of permanent homes."

What would you think if you were coming down Mill Street some morning and you saw "For Rent" signs in the windows of half our stores? You would be astonished. Yet that is what happens where people do their shopping away from home.

Do your shopping at home—your grocer, clothier, hardware man, Jeweler, Dry Goods—in short your business men each and all hire their salesmen and their saleswomen from your home town, pay city and county taxes, business license, contribute liberally to the community chest, charities, Boy Scouts, holiday parades and celebrations, in fact, anything and everything for the betterment of your community.

Benjamin Franklin said "The use of money is all the advantage there is in having money." Put your dollar to work. Don't send it away and make no profit. Do your shopping at home and make three, one for yourself, one for your merchant and one for your community.

"Do your shopping at home." What if you do have to park around by the high school. When business gets that good it will spread out all over, boost the price of real estate, you can sell those lots you bought ten years ago and there will be plenty of business there too.

"Do your shopping at home," not in Central America or the Hawaiian Islands. Then when you take that ride with your family out into the clear sunshine of the country, flourishing with orchards, green alfalfa fields, contented cows, prosperous farmers, on until you arrive back home in the gloaming. Now who can blame you if you swell out your chest and beaming with honest pride, you look down at the wife and kiddies and say, "I'm responsible for all this because I did my shopping at home."

HEALTH TALK

By Dr. H. L. Jones The X-Ray Chiropractor
Nevada Irrigation 138 S. Auburn St.
District Bldg. Grass Valley

Ninety-five per cent of all "disease" is the result of nerve compression or impingement. Practically the only place where such compression is possible is at the little foramina (window-like openings) between the vertebrae of the spine through which the spinal nerves pass after branching from the spinal cord.

The ability of any organ to perform its particular function is due solely to the life-force or vital energy which reaches it via the nervous system, from the center of that system, the brain. The brain, which is the center origin of the entire nervous system, is also the central focus or generating center of the vital power which the nerves transmit to all organs and tissues of the body, by virtue of which alone they are enabled to move, sense secrete fluids, excrete waste substances or perform any of the varied functions of the human organism. It is because the vitality and activity of every organ and tissue cell of the body is maintained and controlled from the brain that the severing of any nerve will cause a cessation of all function beyond the point of section, while any compression, pinching or pressure upon any nerve will result in those abnormalities of structure and derangement of function, which we loosely call "disease."

It is sometimes suggested that the brain represents a dynamo where current is generated, the spinal cord lying within the "backbone" may be regarded as the main trunk line, while its branches, emiting from between the vertebrae of the spinal column, and their myraid subdivisions ramifying the bodily structure, are likened to the wires which directly energize machines, motors, utensils, lamps, etc. Let severance of any wire occur and function disappears in machine or utensil.

Chiropractic adjustments restore normal position to misaligned vertebrae and the curative forces of nature thus released accomplish the transformation from disease to health without presumptious attempts to "assist" them. Chiropractic adjusts the cause of disease. All other modes treat the effects, seeking suppression of the symptoms rather than eradication of the cause. NATURE ALONE CAN CURE. The Chiropractor does not claim to "cure" anybody or anything. The only power to cure inheres in that INNATE intelligence which conducts all physiological processes from infancy to old age. All the Chiropractor does is to take the obstructive pressure off the spinal nerves, thus releasing the impeded power of Nature to restore health where diesease existed before. Are you sick or ailing? Is your spine in perfect alignment, are you sure? You have tried all other methods, why not try the best—Chiropractic.

Phone 144 for your appointment and come in and let me X-Ray that trouble for you. I will show you what is Causing that trouble—you can see for yourself. I maintain the most expensive equiped office in northern California. You are entitled to the best—accept nothing else.

Considerable Activity In The Alleghany District

Reports from Alleghany this week give indication that things are picking up in that section. The Rainbow mine near there is at the present time working about ten men.

This mine is owned by Mr. Seger and has been a good producer in the past, but for several years it has been idle. Preliminary work is now being done and in the near future more men will be added to the payroll.

The Wonder mine in this section is also working a crew of five men and the indications are very good.

MANY MEN WORKING ON FRENCH CORRAL TAILINGS

Since the men have been leaving the South Fork of the Yuba River, several of them have located around the old hydraulic water hole about one quarter mile this way from French Corral. It was not long ago that no one was working the tailings around the water hole, but now one can count at least eight miners hard at work every day. When the first heavy rains come and the rivers begin to swell, it is probable that a number more will locate around the water hole and work through the winter there.

There are now three pumps on the water hole, pumping water through pipes and hoses to the high ground where the gravel is being ground, sluiced into boxes, fitted in just below the place of operation. These pumps have already drained the level of the water hole down several feet. From time to time, because of the lowering water, the pumps have to be lowered so that the suction check valve remains under water.

Miners sworking there without a pump are dipping the water up from the water hole with the aid of a can fastened on the end of a short stick. They pour the water into the upper end of a "long tom" and the water washes down gravel shoveled into the upper end. Carried by the water, the gravel is washed over the square meshed screening and sacking that is fitted into the bottom of the "long tom" for most of the length of the bottom board. The screening and sacking catch the light flake gold that is still carried in the San Juan ridge tailings.

Sometimes the men are able to uncover a virgin piece of bed-rock and the gold recovery from those places is as a rule much greater than from the tailings. Powder is sometimes used to move the largest boulders in order to get at the choicest bit of ground.

As a whole, the picking are pretty slim around the old diggings. The old timers had a habit of not leaving any easy money within reach. And after they left the ridge, hundreds of Chinese miners infested the district delving still further into the old gravel channels. The Chinese are said to be much more thorough than the white man when it comes to cleaning out a gold deposit, so one can imagine how easy it is now to make anything out of those tailings.

At any rate the men around the old water hole are not discouraged. They are going the Chinamen one better by continuing to make a living out of the much worked diggings.

Accomodations for the miners are not of the best. Camp conditions prevail as there are not enough houses around French Corral to go around. Most of the men have a tent pitched somewhere near water.

Two of the pumps working are not returning the water to the water hole and so their work is draining the water more than any of the other working plants. The third pumps returns water to the water hole and so does not actually use up any of the stored water. Of course the "long tom" operations all return their water like the last mentioned pump.

Work of the above described type is of the hardest kind and as a rule the results are nowhere near right for the amount of effort expended. It may sound easy to go up in the hills and sluice out some gold, but the real McCoy is no picnic.

Fifty Cchannel lights for navigation in deep water channel will be installed before January 1.—Stockton Independent.

ORGANIZATION OF CUB PACK FOR THIS CITY

A meeting for boys eligible for the Cub Pack and their mothers took place Monday afternoon in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. The meeting was for the purpose of actually organizing the Pack.

Fourteen boys and 16 mothers were present at the meeting. Five dens in different Nevada City localities were established.

This worthy work is being sponsored by the Nevada City Parent Teachers Association who have appointed Mr. G. R. Schrader of this city as Cub Master. An assistant will be later appointed to help him in the work. An advisory board composed of William Perry, George L. Jones and Carl Tobiason has been established.

The Monday meeting was very encouraging. Everyone is entering into the work with a willingness that bespeaks of a successful organization. Other boys of the right age are asked to join the Pack. It is necessary to have their mothers or guardians sign for them.

Tommorrow at two o'clock in the afternoon, another meeting will be held at the Forester's hall on Commercial street. All mothers and interested boys are invited to attend.

At the Monday meeting a club of Cub mothers was organized. Mrs. Eliza Kilroy was nominated and elected chairman of the body. They will work in conjunction with the executive committee. It is planned that the mothers shall meet once a month and at that meeting the Cubs will demonstrate what they have learned in their other meetings.
